

Abstract of the Disclosure

- The present invention discloses methods relating to screening methods and methods of identifying a compound that can modulate HERG potassium channel activity. The methods generally employ at least HERG and KCR1 5 polypeptides. The disclosed methods can be applied in the development of a candidate pharmaceutical or they can be employed to evaluate presently marketed pharmaceuticals.

10000151, 103061